Story

sarah and daniel love a lazy sunday afternoon just simply relaxing and hanging out together. they first met on e-harmony and talked online for a month before their first date. before daniel met sarah, he thought he was being catfished. sarah wanted her wedding to be romantic, traditional, classic, soft, fancy, and formal. when they started off their wedding days exchanging not one, but three completely different personal and heart-felt gifts including sweet love notes to one another we knew they had found their match. these two lovebirds held their wedding ceremony at st. matthews church in downtown charleston sc. sarah's bouquet consisted of light blue hydrangea and white roses with freesia and lilac accents. after their wedding ceremony, they hopped around a bit of downtown for some photos in classic downtown charleston and then headed over to meet their guests at the breathtaking river course clubhouse on kiawah island. the kiawah wedding reception commenced with cocktails and appetizers overlooking the 18th green and the ashley river with touches of blues, grays and neutrals throughout the amazing decor by haley with a charleston bride. candle light was very important for the romantic feel of the wedding – they are avid candle collectors. the reception florals consisted of mercury glass accents with primarily white flowers and a touch of blue hydrangea. guests enjoyed a delectable dinner from kiawah island club river course clubhouse. rather than a typical sparkler farewell, the couple opted to have their family and friends send them off with farewell bubble guns as they exited the river course and hopped in sarah's dads' rolls royce.
